- some elements of the website may have too little contrast;
- the website may have a distorted heading hierarchy;
- content published by third parties (authors) may not comply with the requirements of the Law;
- selected films and audio materials may not have transcription and/or audiodescription;

On the website, next to the link to each document in the repository, there are links which, in the absence of a file version compliant with WCAG requirements or in the event of noticing insufficient compliance, allow for automatic sending to the website's editorial office of information about the need to adapt the file to WCAG requirements.

If the requesting person reports the need to receive information in an alternative form, they should also specify the form of this information.

The public entity should comply with the request immediately and no later than within 7 days. If it is not possible to meet this deadline, the public entity shall immediately inform when it will be possible to comply with the request, provided that this deadline cannot be longer than 2 months. If it is not possible to ensure accessibility, the public entity may propose an alternative way to access the information.

If an entity refuses to comply with a request to provide accessibility or alternative access to information, a complaint may be filed against such action.

After all possibilities have been exhausted, the complaint can also be sent to the Ombudsman.
